

Studebaker Wagons

Having built up an enormous business by building honest wagons for 63 years, Studebaker must continue to build them. One should buy a wagon which is good enough to last a lifetime. It's a waste of money to do otherwise. Nothing but long life, light weight and easy running, horse-saving qualities will give satisfaction and be found worth the money. A few dollars will fade away when scattered over forty years, but the stuff that is under the paint is what gives a man ten years of grief and expense or 40 years of service and satisfaction. The real question is "What is under the paint?" Get a STUDEBAKER.

THE SCIENCE OF MAX
Aha, where did you learn it? George? "San Diego." And now do you really know yourself? "From stem to gudgeon." "Oh what a Wisecracker!" "Thou hast said it!" When Prof. Fowler traveled, and lectured on phrenology, many years ago, I dropped my remittance for "head knowledge." "Got it!" I should say yes! You, said the Professor, have a skull of ancient origin, shaped like the prehistoric—it is neither full nor empty, but thicker than a mallet, as your conception proves. "Self-complacent." "Way down in B." "Combustiveness." "Only when the other fellow looks from you." "Intelligence." "Not a bit." "Love." Yes, rather high there for you to climb and flick a fellow being, and would lay awake nights glooming over it—"Oh I don't mean that, Professor, I mean love for the gentler sex." Say, he replied, "Arab loves his horse; a Mexican his burro; an Equinox his dog, and a miser his gold."—They are not a circumstance to you, as they all really love for the service of the world. "You, love a woman?" Ha! Ha! Oh me! Oh my! "Don't you know better than ask me such a question?" "Is the Egyptian Sphinx susceptible, or a baroque cliff soluble?"—M'boy, ha! amorous or loving bump isn't the size of a mustard seed—Go off and die, he added, leaving room for good people. "I had almost forgotten this heart of mine." "Oh Lord, I groan, lying among the Mummies and skulls, at the museum, I met an enthusiast who immediately waded into the annals of monkeys and man, to my intense delight and benefit, but I always queer myself by talking too much,—as will be shown.

"My learned Sir, all skulls contain some good, do they not? What would you classify? Mind, or the rather what good is in it and what it is good for?" "Evidently, an animal brain makes good eating, and their skulls, buttons, and buttons for the necks of their coats. I see but one purpose to which yours could be made available, and that is by saying it in twin crosswise, the upper portion might be of use as a drinking vessel. Oh Lord, I groan, neither body or head amount to much, but a drinking cup beats a phantom, and I wept for joy,—but only for a moment as grim memory returned to the fact that in early life I had undergone trophing, and the hole, still here, forbade even water to be held in its circle. That settled it. Neither myself, my bones, or my memory are of any good to me hereafter, and tomorrow I shall select a 4x4 lot in the paupers patch, and after swallowing a pound of candle shell 'shuff' off this mortal coil, and lie down to endless dream." All I fear is, "What dreams may come."

Well as long as life lasts I must rustle and sell goods. I now have 100 volumes of books: Fiction, history, medical, law, Scripture, and everything known. They are cheap, very cheap.
